

Men's EHF Cup from the season 2012/13

Correct name of the new competition:

The competition is to be called "EHF Cup"

Playing system:

The basic playing system has been announced earlier, however, it is once again attached to this e-mail. It consists of three qualification rounds, a group phase with 16 teams in four groups and a quarter final and finally a final tournament with four teams at one weekend at one venue. All playing dates and further details can be found in the attachment.

System of Seeding:

As is standard in EHF club competitions, the seeding is calculated on the basis of the three most recent seasons. Consequently the results of the seasons 2011/12, 2010/11 and 2009/10 will be considered to determine the seeding of the teams for the 2012/13 season.

As there was the EHF Cup as well as the Cup Winners' Cup parallel in these last three seasons, the results of both competitions of these seasons were added and then divided by two in order to get the points for the seeding for the 2012/13 season.

For the seeding of the season 2013/14, the points of the seasons 2011/12 and 2010/11 of the "old" EHF Cup and Cup Winners' Cup will be considered, divided by two and then the points of the season 2012/13 will be added.

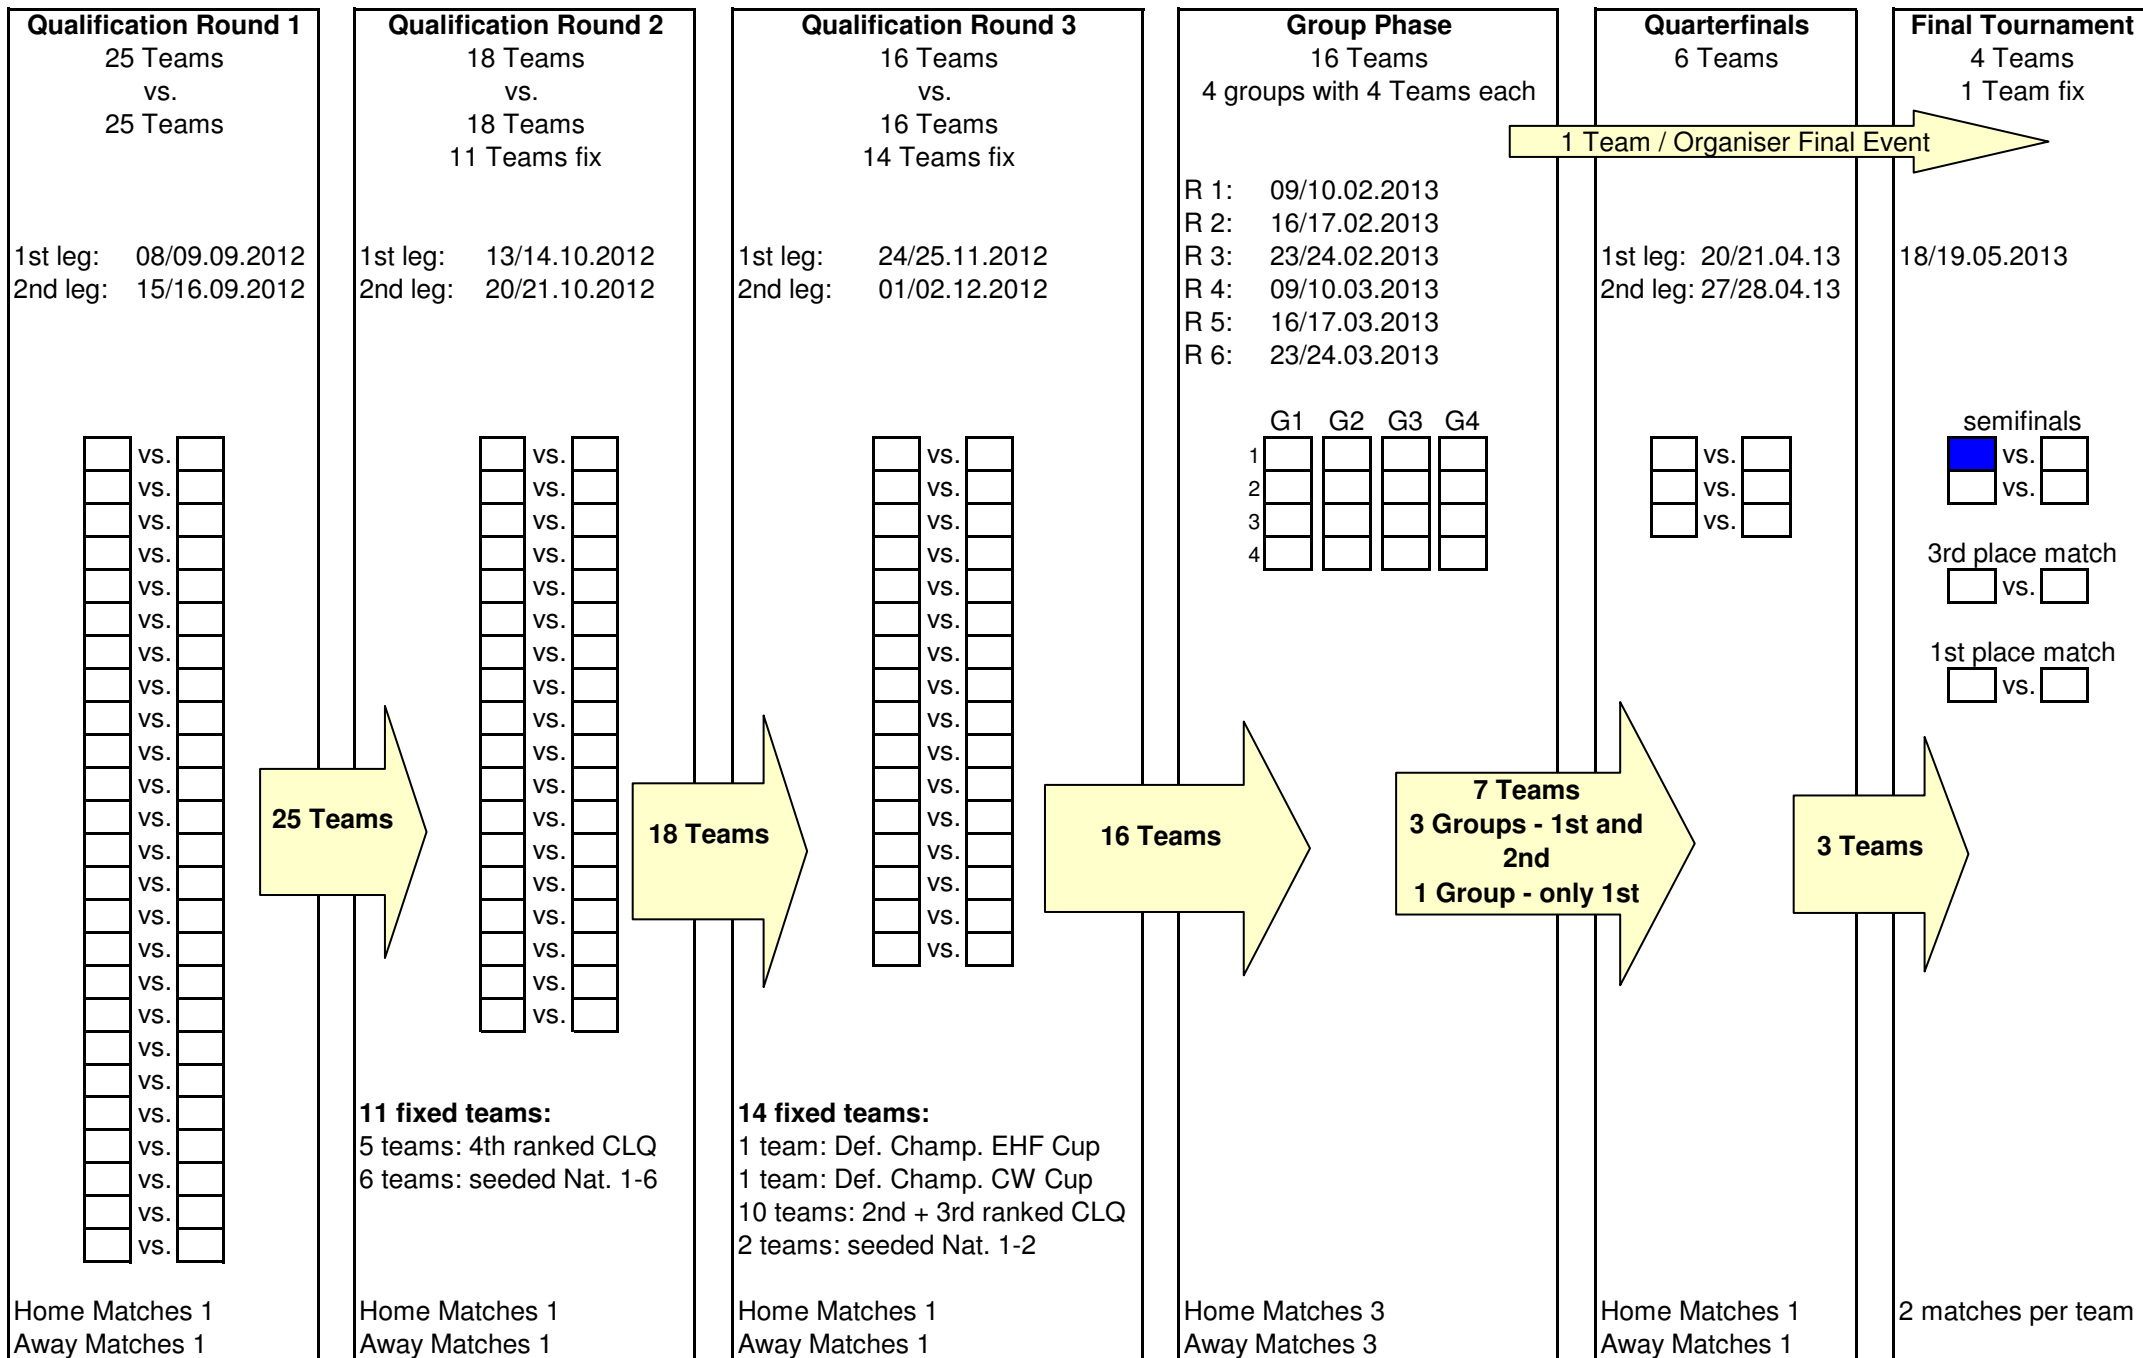

For the seeding of the season 2014/15, the points of the season 2011/12 of the "old" EHF Cup and Cup Winners' Cup will be considered, divided by two and then points of the seasons 2013/14 and 2012/13 will be added.

In the season 2015/16 the points of the three previous of the "new" EHF Cup seasons will simply be added.

A first draft of the seeding list is attached to this e-mail in order to provide a first information regarding the rounds of entering the competition for the different teams.

We want to underline that this seeding list is subject to changes as it will have to be adapted once the final registrations of the clubs are available to the EHF. A final seeding list will therefore only be available in mid July!
